Restorative Justice, Sexual Assault and Family Violence

For some 40 years, women's groups and some of the legal fraternity have fought for legislative changes to make the judicial system take sexual assault seriously. Why would we even consider looking at restorative justice for sexual assault and family violence?

Carolyn Worth has been the Manager of the South Eastern Centre Against Sexual Assault for 23 years. Prior to this position she worked for 10 years in the Family Court of Australia as a Court Counsellor. She is the spokesperson for the CASA Forum which is the peak body for the Centres Against Sexual Assault in Victoria. Carolyn sits on a number of advisory committees and is the recipient of the Robin Clark Memorial Award, is on the Victorian Honour Roll of Women and has received an OAM.
